The Supplier is responsible for the costs incurred by the Supplier in connection with the delay, except if the delay is attributable to the Buyer.

4.2 The Supplier's liability for delays is described in item 7.2 below. The Supplier is also responsible for any costs incurred by Purchaser that could have been avoided if the Supplier had notified the Buyer of the delay within a reasonable period of time.

4.3 Final Delivery

Unless the Parties agree otherwise, the delivery is deemed to have occurred when the Products are handed over to the Buyer and the agreed installation work and testing have been approved and completed.

5. CHANGES AND CANCELLATIONS

The provisions in Paragraphs 5.1–5.6 are only applicable in the event the Products are manufactured exclusively for the Buyer and for such work as is mentioned in Paragraph 3.

5.1 With regard to what the Parties may reasonably have expected at the time the Agreement was executed, the Purchaser shall have the right to demand changes in the Product quality and/or quantity, as well as the delivery date.

5.2 If the Supplier finds that a change is necessary, the Purchaser shall be notified in writing within a reasonable period of time.

5.3 All changes must be approved by the Purchaser through a written acknowledgment of the changes before the Supplier initiates the changes.

5.4 When the Purchaser requests a change, the Supplier shall, within a reasonable period of time, submit a written acknowledgment in which the Supplier describes the changed Product. The Supplier shall also provide a written estimate of how the change affects the agreed price and schedule.

5.5 The compensation for the changes shall be equal in proportion to the prices, standards and charges governed by the Agreement or to the original price level in the Agreement. If such a change results in a cost reduction for the Supplier, the Buyer shall be offered a reasonable price reduction.

5.6 If the Parties are unable to agree on a cost reduction or cost increase or other consequences as a result of the change, the Supplier shall, upon request from the Purchaser, implement the change without waiting for the dispute to be resolved.

The invoices shall clearly indicate what the invoiced amounts relate to. right to return any invoices that do not meet these requirements.

6.2 If the Supplier has agreed to provide a bank guarantee, the Buyer does not need to pay anything before the bank guarantee has been received.

6.3 The Buyer has the right to deduct any prepaid amounts and accrued penalty payments from the Supplier invoices. Disputed or non-documented invoiced amounts may be offset against or deducted from the Supplier invoices.

7. BREACH OF CONTRACT

7.1 Delays

A delay occurs when the Supplier fails to comply with the schedule specified in the Agreement, so long as the delay is not attributable to the Buyer.

If the Product has such defects that the Purchaser has been unable to use the Product for the intended purposes, this is deemed to be a delay.

The supplier is liable for delays in accordance with Paragraph 7.2

7.2 Consequences of delay

Unless the Parties agree otherwise, a penalty of 0.3% per day of the amount specified in the Agreement shall accrue if the provision of the Product or parts of the Product is not made within the deadline. However, the penalty shall never exceed 15% of the price specified in the Agreement.

If the delay is the result of gross negligence or an intentional act by the Supplier or another person, for whom the Supplier is responsible, the Purchaser shall have the right to demand compensation for any damages incurred as a result of the delay instead of the accrued penalty.

The Buyer has the right to immediately terminate the Agreement in the event of a delay.

If the Products are manufactured exclusively for the Buyer and the Supplier thus is unable to sell the products without incurring a significant loss, the Purchaser is only entitled to terminate the Agreement if the accrued penalty amounts to the maximum amount or if the delay constitutes a serious breach of contract.

7.3 Defects

A defect shall be deemed to exist if the Supplier does not fulfill its commitments in accordance with Paragraph 2.1 above.

The Supplier is liable for defects in accordance with Paragraph 7.4.

The Buyer's audit in accordance with Paragraph 2.3 and the fact that the Supplier has submitted drawings, goods or samples for the Purchaser to review, does not limit the Supplier's responsibility for ensuring that the Products comply with the contractual requirements.

The Buyer shall inspect the Products within a reasonable time after delivery.

The Purchaser is not required to inspect the Products before they are delivered to the final destination. If the Supplier shall perform the installation work, the Buyer is not required to inspect the Product until it has been accepted in accordance with Paragraph 3.2.

The Buyer is also required to inspect the Products when the Supplier has performed repair work.

Within a reasonable time after detecting the defect, the Purchaser shall provide the Supplier with a written notice of defect. Such notice may never be provided later than 24 months after delivery. The same time limit applies for replaced or repaired parts and is calculated from the date of replacement or repair. The time-limit for providing the notice of defect does not begin to run until the troubleshooting or other activities that must be performed under the Agreement have been completed.

7.4 Liability for defects

When the Purchaser has notified the Supplier of a defect, the Supplier shall begin troubleshooting without delay. The troubleshooting may be postponed at the request of the Purchaser, if the Purchaser has an acceptable reason for doing so. Troubleshooting shall be performed at the Supplier's expense.

If the Supplier fails to remedy the defect within a reasonable time, the Purchaser shall have the right remedy the defect himself, or through a third party, at the Supplier's risk and expense, or withhold a reasonable portion of the payment. The same applies if waiting for the Supplier's troubleshooting results in a considerable inconvenience for the Purchaser. The Supplier must be notified in writing before the troubleshooting begins.

The Buyer has the right to demand compensation for any damage caused by the defect. Such compensation shall only cover direct damages, unless the damage was caused intentionally or by gross negligence on the part of the Supplier or by someone for whom the Supplier is liable.

The Buyer has the right to terminate the Agreement with immediate effect if a defect constitutes a serious breach of contract. In this case, the Purchaser shall have the right to refuse the Supplier's offer to troubleshoot and/or replace the product.

7.5 Damages

The Supplier shall hold the Buyer harmless if the Products infringe on the third party's patents or other intellectual property rights, except in cases where this is necessary according to the Buyer's specifications and where the Supplier had no knowledge of nor should have been aware, that such infringement would occur.

8. FORCE MAJEURE

8.1 "Force Majeure" means all events outside the affected parties' control, in so far as neither Party could reasonably have foreseen that such an event would occur at the time the Agreement was entered into And it is not reasonable to assume that either party could have avoided or mastered its consequences.

8.2 A Party shall not be deemed to have breached this Agreement if it can be proven that he was unable to perform his obligations as a result of Force Majeure. Each party is responsible for its own costs in the event of Force Majeure.

8.3 The party invoking Force Majeure shall notify the other party within a reasonable period of time. The notice shall specify the circumstances which led to the delay as well as the estimated length of the delay.

8.4 Either Party has the right to terminate the Agreement with immediate effect if the circumstances covered by this Paragraph last or are expected to be last for more than 60 days.
